The 50-year-old man charged with murdering his girlfriend in the case of a missing Halifax woman has been arraigned and remanded to the Central Nova Correctional Facility in Burnside until his next court appearance in July.

Paul Trevor Calnen of Hammonds Plains appeared briefly in Halifax provincial court Tuesday afternoon to face charges of second-degree murder and indignity to human remains related to Reita Jordan's disappearance.

He is due back in court on July 22.

Calnen, who was dating Jordan, was arrested at 2:30 p.m. Monday on Brunswick Street in Halifax, said RCMP spokesman Cpl. Scott MacRae.

"There's definitely a lot of questions that the public would still want answered, and it's very much an active file," MacRae said.

He said Calnen was arrested without incident but could not say exactly what led police to the Brunswick Street residence.

"The investigation led to reasonable grounds to arrest him," he said.

In late March, police received a report of a missing person's case about the 34-year-old Jordan, who was last seen on March 19. She hasn't been seen or heard from since.

MacRae said police were concerned because Jordan hadn't been active on any social media since she went missing.

In April, police announced that the case was being turned over to its major crime unit, while still being a missing-persons file.

MacRae could not confirm the relationship between Jordan and Calnen but said they were known to each other.

"The search for her remains has not stopped," MacRae said.

He said investigators have been working closely with Jordan's family since she went missing.

Additional charge

Accused of indignity to human remains

Paul Trevor Calnen is also facing a charge of indignity to human remains, which is applied when someone neglects to properly bury a body or treats it indecently.

MacRae said he couldn't speak to Calnen's case specifically, but a person is guilty of the charge if they do something which "discredits or interferes with the burying of a dead person."

"It's committed when basically you treat the body, buried or not, improperly or indecently," MacRae said.

Chris Hansen, spokesperson for the public prosecution service, said over the past number of years she's seen the charge handed down "just a handful of times" in high-profile cases.

"It's not a frequent thing but it happens."

'Unwanted visitors' found in waters off Nova Scotia

'Sea squirts'

Tunicates, green crab, among species affecting fisheries

HALEY RYAN

haley.ryan@metronews.ca

The next time you take your boat for a spin in the Halifax harbour, or jump off the dock of a nearby lake, be sure to check underneath for "unwanted visitors," says a biologist with the Department of Fisheries and Oceans.

On Tuesday, workers at the Bedford Institute of Oceanography displayed different examples of foreign "sea squirts" or tunicates that have been found in the area.

Biologist Dawn Sephton said tunicates, which are cylindrical and look like large slugs, affect biodiversity, compete with shellfish for food, and weigh down fishing gear or buoys.

"(They're) having a very direct and serious impact on the shellfish culture industry," Sephton said about the vase and clubbed tunicate species, who have no predators here.

Sephton said the department tracks invasive species with 60-70 stations around the province and HRM, made up of six "collectors" or long strings dangling plastic plates.

The stations are checked in August and October, and depending on how "heavily fouled" the plates are with organisms, the department creates distribution maps for the province.

Now that regulations are in the works for aquatic species, Sephton said they will try to pinpoint the cost of these species to the fishing industry.

In 2012, three new types were detected in Nova Scotia: the European tunicate, Diplosoma, and clubbed tunicate which is native to Korea and impacted P.E.I.'s mussel industry, Sephton said.

"Last summer was an incredibly warm summer ... and when the water's warm it creates a new niche that some of these tropical species can exploit," Sephton.

Green crabs are also a problem because they're very aggressive and attack fish as well as harm seagrass habitats, Sephton said.

Fellow biologist Benedikte Vercaemer said these species turn up in Halifax because of foreign vessels coming into the harbour and Bedford Basin. They usually hitch rides on slow-moving barges or in a ship's bilge water.

The fisheries department recommends removing the species from boats or draining water once you're on land, checking the hull before you travel to a different spot, and let diving gear dry out completely.

Weighing in. Councillors push back deadline for public consultation on regional plan review

Halifax regional councillors have agreed — after some debate — to extend the deadline for public feedback on the Regional Plan five-year review.

Councillors voted to extend the deadline for consultation to July 19 in order to allow rural and suburban residents more time to weigh in.

"We've only had four meetings, in one week, all in urban areas," said Coun. David Hendsbee. "It takes some people time to get engaged.... July and August might be a good time for people to look at the regional plan, have discussion with the neighbours. We've got to have that opportunity."

Coun. Jennifer Watts tabled the motion, asking that the deadline be extended so that councillors could have an open discussion of the draft regional plan and Stantec report on Alternative Growth Scenarios at next week's committee of the whole meeting.

The Stantec report evaluates HRM's growth targets and suggests not increasing density in the urban core could cost billions of dollars.

"To hear the presentation and hear councillors ask questions about it, I think would just set us up for that final push to make sure the public understands what's in the draft," said Watts.

Coun. Bill Karsten opposed the additional debate and extended deadline, saying council should stick to its existing timeline on the regional plan review.

"As councillors have questions on those reports, staff are available to answer any questions throughout this process," said Karsten. "We're prolonging this a little too much from my point of view."

Leave Otter Lake alone: Citizen-run committee pleads its case to council

Concerns over report.

Councillors hear duelling presentations on effectiveness of front-end processing system at landfill

RUTH DAVENPORT
ruth.davenport@metronews.ca

The regional councillor for the district that includes the Otter Lake landfill says just discussing changes to front-end processing is selling out the community.

Councillors heard two presentations on Tuesday on the Stantec Consulting recommendation to eliminate the Front-End Processor (FEP) and Waste Stabilization Facility (WSF) at Otter Lake.

Quoted

"We have an enduring agreement; we stated that would be reliable. What are we prepared to do? Break the agreement and sell out? I cannot accept that."

Coun. Reg. Rankin

"Our conclusion was that ... we don't feel that you're getting a significant benefit from the $8 million a year being spent," said Stantec engineer James Archibald during a presentation that prompted several vocal reactions from a packed public gallery.

The report suggests the elimination would save about $10 million annually.

Those assertions were challenged during the second presentation from the citizen-run Community Monitoring Committee.

Scott Kyle of Dillon Consultants told councillors there were nine areas of "major concern," in the Stantec report, primarily the mischaracterization of the role of the FEP and WSF.

He said the report relied on a 1995 definition that emphasized revenue generation — a definition that was superseded in 1996 with an explicit focus on sorting and treating compostables.

"You have to go back to what was it originally designed to do ... and judge the facility on those metrics," he said. "Changing metrics that were not relevant at the point of design ... I find quite troublesome."

The CMC is asking council not to put the elimination of the processing facility out to public consultation this fall, saying removing them would violate a written agreement with residents.

Coun. Reg Rankin said the dollar figures could skew the public consultation.

"The cost benefits are dangling for the outside, unaffected community," he said. "What is the price that you're prepared essentially to sell out a community? How much honour do we have for an agreement?"

Coun. Matt Whitman tabled a motion to reject the recommendation, but it was declared out of order.

Whitman said he'll likely table a new motion in the near future.

Nova Scotians not happy with EI changes: Poll

Nova Scotians aren't happy with recent changes made to the Employment Insurance program, a new survey suggests.

According to the Atlantic Canada-wide survey released by Corporate Research Associates Inc. on Tuesday, 68 per cent of Nova Scotians interviewed were against the new rule requir-

Impaired driving

Man sentenced to prison for accident that killed woman

A 37-year-old Sydney man was sentenced Tuesday to three years in federal prison after pleading guilty to two impaired driving-related offences.

Leo Stewart O'Donnell will also be prohibited from driving for three years after his release from prison.

He pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving causing death and impaired driving causing bodily harm.

Other charges were withdrawn.

The charges stem from a fatal two-vehicle car accident on Grand Lake Road, near the Kytes Hill turnoff, on Dec. 2, 2010. The accident killed 30-year-old April Claire Bramwell, a nurse, and injured her niece, Nikayla Bramwell.

Ottawa raises offshore liability cap to $1 billion

Arctic, Atlantic waters.

Nova Scotia premier happy with decision

The Canadian government is planning to introduce new rules to make drilling and production companies more accountable in the event of offshore spills.

Federal Natural Resources Minister Joe Oliver, speaking at a news conference Tuesday in Halifax, said Ottawa will introduce legislation this fall to raise the liability cap for companies operating in Atlantic Canada's offshore to $1 billion, up from the current $30 million.

The liability cap in the Arctic would also increase to $1 billion from the current $40 million, he said.

"This means companies would bear up to $1 billion of responsibility for spill cleanup costs and compensation for damages whether or not they are at fault," said Oliver.

He said the move is aimed at aligning Canada's rules with countries such as Norway, Denmark, the United States and the United Kingdom.

The changes would also be put in place in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland and Labrador to make the so-called polluter-pays principle explicit in provincial legislation later this year.

Oliver said companies are currently responsible only for cleanup costs and damages with measurable economic value. He said the changes would include so-called non-use value such as damage to the environment in liability calculations.

"This will provide an additional basis for government to pursue operators and to recoup financial compensation for damages to coastlines, habitats and species."

The minister said companies are required to prove to regulators that they have the financial ability to meet their liability.

The current minimum requirement of proof is between $250 million and $500 million, something Oliver said would be increased to $1 billion.

Premier Darrell Dexter said the changes would ensure safer operation in his province's offshore.

"With the great potential in our offshore comes some risk," he said. "The changes announced today help reduce that risk and make companies more accountable for their actions."

Gretchen Fitzgerald, director of the Atlantic Canada Chapter of the Sierra Club of Canada, said while an improvement, the new liability cap doesn't go far enough.

Fitzgerald said there should be no limits on liability when there's a spill.

He asked if she will provide whatever information is requested concerning the involvement of Defence

Another Montreal mayor bids adieu amid scandal

Resignation. Vote at city council next week expected to decide replacement until November election

Montreal has had its second scandal-provoked mayoral resignation in less than a year, with an arrest and criminal charges leading to the departure on Tuesday of its interim city-hall boss.

Replacement mayor Michael Applebaum stepped down a day after he was slapped with 14 criminal charges.

He made the announcement in a two-minute statement at city hall. He did not take questions. Applebaum said he's innocent of the charges against him and will work to prove his innocence.

"I will do everything I can to prove the accusations against me are unfounded," Applebaum said.

He said he hoped someday to regain Montrealers' trust. He conceded that, in the meantime, it would have been implausible to try to continue as mayor.

In making that direct appeal to residents, Applebaum committed a quintessentially Montreal linguistic flub, mixing English and French terms with unintended consequences.

"I would like to tell Montrealers that I love them," he

"I hope you understand that I will put my energy into my defence and my family. This is why I am resigning as mayor of Montreal. It is the responsible thing to do."

began. "I understand their frustration, their deception and their cynicism with the political climate of the last few years."

The word "deception" has an entirely different meaning in French. In the local français patois, however, even native English-speakers such as Applebaum will sometimes use the term incorrectly when they actually mean to say "disappointment."

The mistake was not without irony.

Applebaum spent much of his statement combating the notion that he had deceived Montrealers. Seven months after he took office on a promise to fight corruption, Applebaum insisted he had never participated in illegal schemes and said he had achieved successes in cleaning up city hall.

The charges against him stemmed from alleged acts that occurred from 2006 to 2011, before he became mayor. While police offered few details, they said the charges related to real-estate projects in the west-end borough Applebaum led.

Police said they believe bribes were paid to influence zoning and permit decisions.

Lawson's husband admits assault

Prominent British art collector Charles Saatchi has admitted assault and accepted a police caution after published photos showed him grasping the throat of his wife, celebrity chef Nigella Lawson.

In Tuesday's editions, the London Evening Standard newspaper quoted him as saying that he had approached police to discuss the June 9 incident after seeking legal advice.

"Although Nigella made no complaint I volunteered to go to Charing Cross (police) station and take a police caution after a discussion with my lawyer because I thought it was better than the alternative of this hanging over all of us for months," he told the newspaper.

Under British law, a caution is a formal warning given to someone who admits the offence. It carries no penalty.

U.S. surveillance halted NYSE attack: Officials

The U.S. foiled a plot to bomb the New York Stock Exchange because of the sweeping surveillance programs at the heart of a debate over national security and personal privacy, officials said Tuesday at a rare open hearing on intelligence led by lawmakers sympathetic to the spying.

The House Intelligence Committee hearing provided a venue for officials to defend the once-secret programs. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Year in hiding: Assange's life in a single room

Stalemate. Britain has spent nearly $5M in policing costs, and it still won't grant WikiLeaks boss a safe passage out

KIERON MONKS
Metro World News in London

Inside the gold-framed double doors, the Ecuadorian Embassy of London is a modest apartment with white-painted walls and simple furniture. Not the most fitting residence for a world famous hero, or villain.

But since June 19, 2012, WikiLeaks boss Julian Assange has gone from pioneer to captive, forced into hiding to avoid extradition to Sweden where possible charges on sexual assault await him. The Australian will be arrested if he steps outside the building, so the jet-set lifestyle has been replaced by a single room and his laptop.

DVD box sets of The Twilight Zone and The West Wing keep him company, and an ultraviolet lamp replaces daylight. Assange lives nocturnally according to reports, working until dawn, supported by heavy doses of caffeine.

The 41-year-old has not been forgotten, judging from

A general view of the Ecuadorian Embassy in Knightsbridge on Monday in London, England. Ecuadorian Foreign Minister Ricardo Patino has stated that WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange is prepared to continue to seek asylum in the Embassy for another five years if necessary, after talks with his U.K. counterpart William Hague failed to progress.
JORDAN MANSFIELD/GETTY IMAGES

the crowds outside his window shouting "freedom fighter," and the fact that his generous hosts that have granted him asylum and allowed him to cramp their workplace. Further, celebrity guests from Lady Gaga to Oliver Stone have visited, with British filmmaker Ken Loach donating a treadmill on which the captive runs miles each day.

"He's very robust and seems in good health," friend, visitor and restaurateur

Vaughan Smith told Metro, adding that Assange "gets along well with the staff." However, an embassy source confirmed that the experience has been "difficult."

Yet confinement has been put to good use according to acting WikiLeaks chief Kristin Hrafnsson. "The time he saves not travelling is devoted to work and he gets a lot done," Hrafnsson said. "We have had to move the staff around to cover this, but the material is still coming out and our work has not been badly affected."

This previously-quiet corner of London has been impacted, however, with a 24-hour police presence that has cost more than £3 million (about $4.7 million) to date. Yet despite the situation attracting ridicule, it could last "another five years" according to Ecuador's foreign minister Ricardo Patiño, with no diplomatic solution in sight.

Turkey. 'Standing man' inspires protesters to replicate silent defiance

After weeks of sometimes violent confrontation with police, protesters in Turkey have found what could be a more potent form of resistance: Standing still.

The trend was launched by performance artist Erdem Gunduz, who stood silently for hours in Istanbul's central Taksim Square on Monday night, in passive defiance of Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan's violent crackdown on environmental protesters.

Gunduz made no announcement before he paused Monday evening in the square and didn't move. He stood with his hands in his pockets, staring at an image of Turkey's founding father Mustafa Kemal Ataturk, whose admiration is rooted in his success in imposing secular values on a largely Muslim nation 90 years ago.

When police arrived an hour later, they searched his pockets and his backpack, then left.

Witnesses began calling him "duran adam" — "standing man." Some joined him in Taksim, while others began doing the same in other Turkish cities. In Ankara, the capital, a woman stood still at the spot where a protester had been killed.

Early Tuesday morning, police intervened and dispersed the crowd around Gunduz, detaining several protesters. It wasn't clear whether Gunduz was among those arrested, though he was free later Tuesday. Later Tuesday, others returned and began silent vigils.

Debate on Syria went better than expected, says Harper

Summit. But the final G8 statement remains non-committal on Assad, use of chemical weapons

The Group of Eight stopped short of calling for the ouster of Syrian President Bashar Assad in its final statement on Tuesday but did call for a swift end to the bloody civil war and urgent peace talks.

Despite a lack of consensus among the G8, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said the outcome was better than expected.

Harper also spoke about

Shaky agreement

"We have ... a much better outcome than I thought we were going to have. We don't have, as I said, G7 plus one."

Prime Minister Stephen Harper, referring to Russia's dissenting opinion on Syria

Russian President Vladimir Putin more positively than at any other point during his trip to Europe, when he accused Putin of siding with "thugs."

Tensions have escalated over the past week since the U.S. announced it would supply weapons to the Syrian opposition after it found proof the Assad regime attacked its foes with chemical weapons.

Russia — the only member of the G8 that supports Assad — has been highly critical of the move. The Russians also assert that the claims about chemical weapons are based on flimsy evidence.

The rest of the G8 is split over whether the U.S. should arm the rebels, but generally agrees that Assad must go.

The final G8 statement on Syria sought the middle ground. It condemned any use of chemical weapons without admitting any attacks actually happened. It also called for some sort of transitional government, without explicitly calling for Assad's ouster.

Other topics find greater degree of consensus

While the G8 is split over Syria, there were agreements in other areas.

They pledged to stop making ransom payments to terrorist kidnappers and to take action to combat hidden company ownership.

Harper and Obama also chatted for 10-12 minutes Tuesday morning as they walked along a golf cart path at the lakeside Lough Erne resort.

The prime minister said they talked about the Keystone XL pipeline and other areas of mutual interest.

Senate cancels pep talk meant to ease tension over scandal

Marjory LeBreton, government leader in the Senate, said she was shocked to see an invite to a motivational Senate event. SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two speakers hired by the Senate to help motivate senators and staff in the midst of a raging scandal over the abuse of taxpayers' money have had their event cancelled, pending further discussion.

Communications consultant Barry McLoughlin and motivational speaker Marc-Andre Morel had been slated to talk about "the enduring value of the Senate and help bring a little perspective to the current situation," according to an invitation that went out Tuesday morning.

But after a story by The Canadian Press publicized the event, a number of prominent senators blew a gasket.

Marjory LeBreton, government leader in the Senate, said the idea was discussed in principle at a meeting of the internal economy committee's steering committee. But it was never approved by members of the committee.

"I was shocked when I saw that (email)," LeBreton said outside the Senate chamber.

Asked if she thinks hiring speakers is a waste of money, LeBreton responded: "At this point in time, I certainly do."

It was not immediately clear how much the Senate contracted to pay for the speakers.

The talks had been scheduled for Wednesday afternoon — when the Senate is supposed to be sitting.

Spies and allies

Canada may have helped spy on G20

Leaked documents suggest Canada helped the U.S. and Britain spy on the London G20 summit four years ago.

Britain's Guardian newspaper says spies monitored the computers and intercepted the phone calls of foreign politicians and officials at two G20 meetings in London in 2009.

The Guardian published PowerPoint slides describing the operation, including one featuring the emblem of the Communications Security Establishment, Canada's electronic eavesdropping agency.

It appears alongside the logos of key allies: the U.S. National Security Agency and Britain's Government Communications Headquarters.

The documents were leaked by former NSA contractor Edward Snowden, who has touched off a vigorous global discussion about state surveillance.

Earlier documents from Snowden indicated that a top-secret program known as Prism has given the U.S. government access to a huge volume of emails, chat logs and other information from companies. THE CANADIAN PRESS

EU slams Canada for holding up free-trade talks

Northern Ireland. Pressure mounts as U.S. starts negotiations for own deal with EU

Canada has publicly been called on the carpet by the European Union for holding up free-trade talks. EU trade spokesman John Clancy took the unusual step Tuesday of criticizing Canada as the G8 summit in Northern Ireland came to a close.

"We are very close to an agreement," Clancy said in a statement. "The EU has shown pragmatism and flexibility and is ready to take the last steps to achieve a political breakthrough in the negotiations."

"We have been awaiting a similar message from Canada

What's the beef?

- Among the issues believed to be stalling the talks is duty-free access to European markets for Canadian beef.
- Ireland and France, two major beef producers, are believed to have concerns about the amount of Canadian beef allowed into Europe. Canada is said to have balked at the export limit proposed by the Europeans.

Should she be allowed into the EU duty-free? THE CANADIAN PRESS since the trade and agriculture ministers met in Ottawa in early February."

Cranking up the pressure on Canadian negotiators is Monday's announcement that the European Union and the United States are starting their own free-trade talks.

Some have suggested the European negotiators will now turn their attention to the Americans and give short shrift to Canada. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Research. Team develops 'sharp-shooter' drug aimed at several cancers

A team of Canadian and U.S. researchers has developed a new "sharp-shooter" drug they hope may be a breakthrough in treating several types of aggressive cancer.

The drug, known for now as CFI-400945, is a new class of cancer agent that targets an enzyme involved in some malignancies, among them some types of breast cancer and ovarian, colorectal, pancreatic and prostate cancers.

In tests on specially bred lab mice with human breast and ovarian cancers, CFI-400945 "responded spectacularly," significantly shrinking the tumours, said co-principal investigator Dr. Tak Mak of Princess Margaret Cancer Centre.

But the world-renowned researcher cautioned these results occurred in mice — and human cancers can be far more complex.

"To find a cure is our shared dream; our nightmare is that it is not yet within our reach," Mak told a packed news conference at the Toronto hospital

Dr. Tak Mak THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tuesday. "Cure is not a word we like to use lightly and we refuse to use it recklessly or promise you something we cannot deliver."

Still, he and principal collaborator Dr. Dennis Slamon of the University of California at Los Angeles, who developed the blockbuster breast cancer medication Herceptin, are excited about the promise of the new drug that's taken a decade to develop. THE CANADIAN PRESS

HERE'S A TIP: DON'T EXPECT ONE?

OK, I have a cat here. And I'm going to place it gently among the pigeons, then back away:

Should tipping be banned?

A popular high-end New York restaurant called Sushi Yasuda thinks so, and has done exactly that. Servers are forced to live on their salaries. They also get, like, benefits.

The restaurant's owner says the tipping ban ends the bile-inducing requirement to calculate the tip at the end of the meal, recapturing the serenity of fine Japanese dining.

Just so, grasshopper.

This isn't a trend exactly, but there's also a bit of an outbreak in Chicago, where in some restaurants you pay for the meal before you even begin. Careful not to choke on the appetizer.

JUST SAYIN'

Right now, there are overworked and underpaid servers everywhere going WTF? This subject is not even open to negotiation.

Then, just as likely, there are customers who are wondering when the practice of tipping became an obligation under the Geneva Conventions, or wherever they issue those must-be-obeyed decrees.

There's even less room to weasel out of tipping these days. Now, the server hovers (anxious, vigilant) over your shoulder as you pay the bill on that portable Wi-Fi Visa machine with its handy tip-percentage button. I don't know about you, but unless the waiter flambés my dinner companion, I dutifully press the 20 per cent button.

And if he/she does toast my guest, I only leave 15 per cent. You have to take a stand somewhere.

Back in the old days, if you were abandoned altogether somewhere between courses, you could slide a penny under your dish and make your getaway, smug in the knowledge that you failed to put some kid through drama school. But there's no penny button on that infernal machine.

At the New York sushi restaurant, people were so brainwashed that they tried to write in a tip on the bill, even though there was no place to accommodate one. They just didn't get it, until the owners started red-circling the explanation about the tipping ban. Then they got it, and unless they were married to the server, they liked it.

I don't know about a ban, but it might not be a bad idea to restore the idea of the tip as an expression of appreciation for good service. Don't ban tipping; ban the obligation to tip.

Of course, now I've done it. I'll have to eat at home until the heat dies down. Maybe, just to be safe, I'll hire a food taster. Problem is, I'll have to leave a generous tip. Nobody wants an unhappy food taster.

Hi sea lion, nice to meet you

PABLO CERSOSIMO/SOLENT

Pup's close call with killer whale

This fortunate sea lion escaped the jaws of death by a few centimetres after a pod of killer whales risked beaching themselves while in pursuit of their prey.

The South American sea lion pup and others encountered the predatory mammals as they cruised along the coast of Valdes Peninsula in Argentina. METRO

Q and A

Near-death life lesson

PABLO CERSOSIMO
Professional photographer and safari guide, 44, from Buenos Aires, Argentina

It looks like this sea lion is doomed. This seal survived but others were not so fortunate. But in truth pups need a couple of these bad experiences to learn that orcas are predators and that they will be part of their menu. When pups are one month old, they start venturing out into the water and at that stage they don't know what an orca is. They don't associate these whales with danger and often stay in the water when the predators show up. It's a life lesson for the pup.

In these hunter-versus-the-hunted scenarios, do you sympathize with one critter over another? No, I sympathize with both. The orca is one of my favourite animals — it's smart, intelligent and with many respects similar to humans. And I admire the sea lions for their ability to survive against this magnificent predator.

Brainless entertainment has zombies taking over the world

World War Z.

Filmmakers continue to capitalize by making corpses cool for the next generation of little guys and ghouls, who, in turn, eat it up

Zombies are the most recent and most unlikely pop culture heroes.

On TV, the recent Walking Dead finale drew almost 13 million viewers.

At the movies the zombie movie Warm Bodies made still hearts beat again and outdoor recreation retailer REI even bandwagoned with their 13 Essential Tools for Surviving a Zombie Outbreak campaign.

This weekend Brad Pitt battles the undead in World War Z, an action thriller set against the backdrop of a worldwide zombie apocalypse.

The movie has the highest ratio of zombies to humans of any film this year, but don't ask its star why these cannibalistic cadavers are so trendy.

"As for why zombies are so popular," said Pitt, "I really have no idea."

Pitt may not be able to put his finger on it, but academics suggest a variety of reasons. Audiences are interested in zombies in times of crisis, when we feel disempowered, says one, while another writer proposes that they offer something more primal — that the zombies represent an example of control over death.

Whatever the reason, filmmakers have been capitalizing on these cool corpses for years. Some, like Night of the Living Dead and Shaun of the Dead are classics, others, like the stranger-than-usual Zombie Honeymoon, aren't.

The grand-ghoul of all weird zombie movies is 1968's Astro Zombies. Starring horror legend John Carradine and cult star Tura Satana, the story of superhuman monsters on a killing spree has inspired two sequels and a song of the same name by the Misfits.

The mockumentary American Zombie's tag line is, "We're Here. We're Dead. Get Used to It!"

day "lives" of a community of zombies in California, it's a fake undead propaganda film that echoes the struggles of many minorities who have had to fight for human rights.

Fido, a Canadian film starring Billy Connolly and Carrie-Anne Moss, is set in a world where humans won the zombie war and, as victors, have made the undead their domestic servants. Funny rather than scary, this one is worth a look to see the usually motor mouthed Connolly in a fun, shambling and wordless performance.

Strangest of all the non-mainstream zombie movies? Poultrygeist: Night of the Chicken Dead, a movie musical about a fast food chain called American Chicken Bunker whose meals turn diners into chicken zombies. Gross, gory and gratuitous, badmovienight.com called it "one of the sickest, most depraved movies I've ever seen."

If you want to be cool like mommy, don't kiss mommy in public

Britney Spears admits she's starting to feel the sting of her kids getting older, particularly when it comes to her public displays of affection.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Angelina Jolie comes under fire for health decisions

While Angelina Jolie has received near-universal praise for her decision to undergo a voluntary double mastectomy to prevent developing breast cancer, at least one person isn't impressed.

Cancer survivor Melissa Etheridge says that she has the same faulty gene Jolie has that makes cancer more likely, and she doesn't recommend the course the Oscar-winner took.

"I wouldn't call it a brave choice," she tells the Washington Blade.

"I think actually it's the most fearful choice you can make when confronting anything with cancer."

While Ben Affleck might have suggested he and Jennifer Garner were up for adding to their family following the arrival of their third child last year, he's apparently changed his tune.

"That's not going to happen," he tells Extra when asked about having a fourth child.

"We're in a really good place. Three is good. That's enough."

Japan's legislative home

Parliament, or the National Diet, as it is officially known, stands on a site once occupied by feudal lords and is now home to Japan's legislative headquarters. Completed in 1936, the building with a landmark pyramid-shaped dome houses the two chambers — the more powerful House of Representatives (Lower House) and the House of Councilors (Upper House) — under the Japanese parliamentary system. The Upper House provides a free hour-long tour when the house is not in session.

Tsukiji fish market

Sprawling Tsukiji fish market — the world's biggest — is where those beautiful slices of tuna on your sushi come from. Want to witness the famous tuna auctions? Then get up early and be there by 5 a.m. to queue up for the first 120 viewing slots. If that's too early, you can still spend hours roaming a maze of narrow alley ways, but watch out for the motorized carts whizzing around with ice troughs filled with fish.

Walk to Odaiba Beach

Need to burn calories after eating all the delicious local food, but you're too busy sightseeing? Here is a perfect plan — a scenic walk over the Rainbow Bridge to the reclaimed island of Odaiba out in the Tokyo Bay for a picnic, sunbathing on a man-made beach, or even a jog. The walk is just more than 1.7 kilometres including the 918-metre-long single-span suspension bridge and takes less than an hour one way.

Experience a (fake) quake

Japan is one of the most earthquake-prone countries in the world. This public facility, the Ikebukuro Disaster Prevention Center, run by the Tokyo Fire Department, offers a uniquely Japanese experience that can be educational, a bit scary, but also fun. Visitors can experience a temblor — as violent as the March 2011 disaster that struck northern Japan — in a quake simulator built in a living room set.

Five tips for getting enough sleep as a new graduate

MEGHAN GREAVES
TalentEgg.ca

There are many changes that come along with transitioning from the student world to the work world. One of the biggest changes that new grads face is in their schedule.

Getting enough sleep is important for everyone, but especially important for new grads as the change in routine tends to be a big one. Gone are the days where you could grab a couple extra minutes (or hours in some cases...) of sleep as you needed.

The side effects of sleep deprivation are scary, so we have the tips you need to make getting enough sleep simple.

Create a routine

The first step in ensuring that you get enough sleep is setting a routine — and sticking to it. To do this, determine what time you have

Wind down

Sadly, our minds don't shut off the second we put our head on the pillow.

- Our bodies take time to relax enough to fall asleep.
- Winding down before you go to bed can be anything that relaxes you; reading a book, organizing your things for the next day, going for a walk, stretching, talking with your roommate.
- Whatever makes you feel less anxious — do it. This will help you be ready for a good night's sleep.

to wake up and count seven to nine hours back from there — that's your bedtime. For example, if you need to wake up at 6:30 a.m., you'll need to go to bed between 9:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. depending on how much rest your body needs.

Turn off electronics

Set a curfew for your electronics. Researchers have found

In the jungle, the concrete jungle, the worker sleeps tonight. ISTOCK that there might be a correlation between using electronics before bed and sleep quality. In order to fall asleep, our body needs time to wind down and it can't do that right after looking at the bright lights of a television, computer or smartphone. To make sure that your sleep isn't being hampered by your electronics, try to stay away from using them an hour or two before you hit the pillow.

Stay away from sugar and caffeine

There's nothing like a sweet treat or warm drink before bed, but try to stay away from anything with high sugar or caffeine levels as they can keep you awake for hours after you drink them.

Say no

You might not be on the same schedule as your friends and family, but you don't need to be sleep deprived because of it. If your friends' plans are tiring and affecting your work ethic, don't be afraid to pass every once in a while. This doesn't mean that you should become a hermit, but be aware of when you need to put your sleep first and socializing second.

No offence, but Hawks still in the title hunt

Stanley Cup final.

Chicago trails Boston 2-1 in the series with unproductive power play a big concern

There is no panic or frustration. But Chicago Blackhawks coach Joel Quenneville acknowledges his team is in a tough spot going into Game 4 of the Stanley Cup final.

"You lose back-to-back games, it gets your attention," the coach conceded. "We're in a hole right now. We want to make sure (Wednesday) we prioritize the importance of that game and it's a different level."

Down two games to one, the Hawks face a tall order in trying to bring down the Bruins in their own building.

Boston has won seven straight at home and is 8-2 overall at TD Garden in these playoffs, outscoring the opposition 28-17.

At least the Hawks can take solace from their second-round series against Detroit. They trailed the Red Wings three games to one before reeling off three straight wins.

"I think we're in a tough spot," Quenneville acknowledged. "In the Detroit series we found a way to get ourselves to get back into it. That's what we're looking for. (Wednesday) is a very important game, like we have to win (Wednesday) night. Come up with a good result, we're right where we want to be."

Quenneville said he hoped injured star Marian Hossa (upper body) will be back in the lineup. Chicago's co-scoring leader was a late scratch Monday, replaced by Ben Smith.

The Chicago coach has other concerns.

His team is getting schooled in the faceoff circle, putting the Hawks constantly on the back foot. Boston won 40 of 56 faceoffs Monday with Patrice Bergeron winning 24 of 28 draws.

Chicago's power play, which was ordinary during the season (ranking 19th with a 16.7 per cent success rate), has been even worse in the playoffs.

Chicago was 0-for-5 with a man advantage in Game 3 and has not scored a power-play goal in its last 20 chances dating to Game 2 of the Western Conference final. The Blackhawks have an 11.3 per cent success rate this post-season (7-for-62), and are only 3.7 per cent on the road (1-for-27).

The Hawks are 0-for-11 with a man advantage against Boston this series.

Boston's penalty killing isn't helping matters. The Bruins killed off five power plays Monday night, stretching their successful string to 27 consecutive

Jays reach Rocky Mountain high with 7th win in a row

MLB. Rogers shuts down former team and is backed by a trio of home runs

A seven-game win streak and the emergence of Esmil Rogers as a reliable starter is taking some of the pressure off injuries to the Blue Jays' pitching rotation.

Edwin Encarnacion had a home run and three RBIs to back Rogers' strong outing against his former club and Toronto took an 8-3 interleague victory over the Colorado Rockies on Tuesday night.

Rogers (3-2) pitched 6 2/3 innings while giving up three runs — two earned — and four hits in his fourth start of the year.

Catcher J.P. Arencibia went 3-for-4 with a home run and two RBIs for Toronto, which hasn't won seven straight since Aug. 30 to Sept. 9, 2008. The Jays (34-36) have won 11 of their last 14 games since June 2 while outscoring their opponents 73-38 in that span. Maicer Izturis also homered for the Jays.

NFL. Pats' Gronkowski has yet another surgery

New England Patriots tight end Rob Gronkowski. GETTY IMAGES

New England Patriots tight end Rob Gronkowski underwent back surgery on Tuesday, his fifth operation this year.

The operation performed by Dr. Robert Watkins was successful, said Drew Rosenhaus, Gronkowski's agent.

On May 20, the Patriots star had his fourth surgery on the left forearm that he broke on Nov. 18 while blocking for an extra point in a 59-24 win over the Indianapolis Colts. He broke it again in the Patriots' first playoff game, a 41-28 win over the Houston Texans. Rosenhaus said the fourth surgery was expected to be the last on his forearm.

The Patriots open training camp in late July and start the regular season on Sept. 8 at Buffalo.

In 43 NFL games, Gronkowski has scored 39 touchdowns, 38 on passes and one on a run.

Drafted in the second round out of Arizona State in 2010, he was chosen for the Pro Bowl in 2011. In that season, he set NFL records for tight ends with 17 touchdown catches, 18 total touchdowns and 1,327 yards receiving. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The lavish 2014 Lexus IS

Review. OK, no more Mr. Nice Guy; Toyota's luxury brand is here to take down the big guns

MALCOLM GUNN
wheelbasemedia.com

The 2014 IS remains the class rebel of the Lexus fleet, which is great news for those who derive their driving kicks from compact luxury cars that are fleet of foot, strong of character and provide power to either the rear or all four wheels.

The main reason for the IS's existence is to bait BMW 3-series, Audi A4 and Mercedes-Benz C-Class fans into switching teams. Toyota's premium division has learned plenty from its previous two IS generations and now appears to be an even stronger contender with the new-for-2014 version.

The IS, with its 20 per cent stiffer platform, has grown nearly nine centimetres in

2014 Lexus IS

- Type. Four-door, rear-/all-wheel-drive entry-luxury compact sedan
- Engines (hp). 2.5-litre DOHC V6 (204); 3.6-litre DOHC V6 (306)
- Transmissions. Six-speed automatic; eight-speed automatic (IS 350, RWD)
- Base price (incl. destination) $38,000

Fuel economy

As expected, fuel economy for the base IS 250 should remain virtually constant at 9.5 l/100 km in the city and 6.5 on the highway and 10.5/7.3 for the IS 350 (all take premium fuel).

Design

The latest IS has sharpened its demeanor. In front, the car exhibits a hunkered-down stance, aided by a more aggressive nose and what Lexus calls its "spindle" grille that sticks out from the crowd. Also visible is more defining side sculpting extending along the lower body plus an integrated rear deck spoiler.

Engine

If you're familiar with the previous IS drivetrains, you can skip the next sentence. The IS 250 keeps its 2.5-litre V6 with 204 horsepower and 185 pound-feet of torque, while the IS 350 continues with 306 horsepower and 277 pound-feet of torque emanating from a 3.5-litre V6. Both are carry overs.

length, with seven more centimetres between the front and rear wheels, while width and height increase only slightly. Rear-seat riders now benefit with a bit more leg and hip room, which was a drawback on the previous IS.

All passengers will appreciate the more modern-looking cabin that is neatly trimmed out with more centralized controls, touch-sensitive switches and a console-mounted cursortype knob for selecting various infotainment choices.

The rear and all-wheel-drive IS 250 and all-wheel-drive 350 employ six-speed automatic transmissions. An eight-speed automatic is standard when the rear-wheel-drive IS 350 is selected. All-wheel-drive, which is a $3,800 option, splits the torque 50:50 (front/rear) in normal driving situations, but will transfer up to 70 per cent to the rear when wheel slippage is detected.

The IS has Drive Mode Select throttle and transmission programming, with ECO, NORMAL and SPORT S modes for rear-wheel-drive models, plus a SNOW mode for AWD-equipped cars. With an estimated starting price of about $38,000 for the 250 and $48,000 for the 350, including destination charges, the Lexus duo offers an array of standard equipment, but most buyers will likely opt for one or more of the option groups that upgrade the car to full-on luxury status. They include, among others, a navigation system with back-up camera, premium Mark Levinson-brand audio package, heated and cooled seats and a wood-trimmed interior.

The 2014 IS is truly more of a match for the competition. It also strengthens Lexus's position as a purveyor of vehicles with passion and prestige.

Driving force. Kia's engineers know it's a lengthy process to make sure their vehicles' suspension is just right

drive@metronews.ca

Vehicles have specific "rides," depending on what they are: a family sedan will ride smoother than a sports car's harsher suspension, for example, but its steering won't be as firm.

These characteristics are achieved through a procedure called suspension tuning. "The rubber bushings, shocks, springs, stabilizer bars and tires can all be tuned to reach a specific target," says Vu Banh, ride and handling senior engineer at the Hyundai-Kia America Technical Center in California. "Depending on what's desired, if it's ride comfort or sporty handling, you can adjust these parts to reach that goal."

It takes about a year to do the job, which begins when engineers receive the first prototype of a new model. "We start tuning and get a rough setting for that one," Banh says. "Then we get another vehicle that's closer to the production car, and we'll put those (prototype) settings in, fix any issues, make more adjustments and continue

Tuned in

"Depending on what's desired, if it's ride comfort or sporty handling, you can adjust these parts to reach that goal."

Vu Banh, ride and handling senior engineer at Hyundai-Kia America Technical Center. On what tuning different parts of a vehicle can achieve refining as much as we can."

Computers are used extensively in vehicle design, but they're not as useful in suspension tuning, because they can't accurately simulate rubber. Tuning is a painstaking process of making adjustments and then driving the car to see how it feels, over and over again.

How it's done depends on the part. Shock absorbers contain hydraulic oil, and if internal valves are adjusted to different oil flow, the shocks become firmer or softer. Engineers can use soft or hard rubber bushings, or different types of springs to achieve various results.

Even the tires become part of the process.

"If we come up with a new shock setting, for instance, we'll possibly (use) a new tire," Banh says. "Then we'll work around that, going back and forth with the shock tuning until it meets the target. There's always a compromise, because if you want sporty handling, your ride comfort degrades. We have to assign the best balance."

Many new cars now have electric power steering, which uses a motor in the steering column. Unlike hydraulic systems, which use pumps to regulate fluid flow, the motor can be tuned electronically. Engineers dial in the steering for more assist at lower speeds, such as when manoeuvring in parking lots, and less at higher speeds for easier control on the highway.

They also aim for good "on-centre feel," where the car stays straight without the need for constant steering wheel correction.

To note

- Twitchy. Cars with extremely direct steering are called "twitchy," which can be fun in a sports car but is undesirable in a family sedan.
- Save cash. Electric power steering improves fuel economy and doesn't require petroleum-based fluid as hydraulic systems do.
- Wheels. Tires can radically alter a car's ride, depending on their size and construction.

In every boss lies an icon and an idiot

Autopilot. Automotive success Bob Lutz tells us to take the good with the bad boss-wise and always learn from your time under them

AUTO PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

Over his illustrious five-decade career in the auto biz, successful automotive executive Bob Lutz has worked with a lot of famous bosses. From that vantage point he noticed that most of the really successful ones were also “mentally and emotionally askew.”

In his new book, Icons and Idiots, Lutz profiles nine such bosses (and one teacher and one Marine drill sergeant), all of which have taught him major lessons in leadership. The title doesn't mean that some are idiots and some are icons. Rather that every strong leader is a bit of both.

“There's a good side, which gets the job done,” says Lutz. “There's often a downside that makes them hard to understand or difficult to work for. It's precisely because they are impatient, stubborn, opinionated, unsatisfied and domineering that they are successful.”

His advice to those of us currently dealing with such unbalanced bosses is to learn to take the good with the bad. Here are a few examples of what Lutz has learned:

From sadistic Marine Corps Staff Sgt. Donald Giusto:

“Learning to continue to function in the face of failure, betrayal, acute disappointment, all the while physically and mentally tired, perhaps without food, is what the Marine Corps expects from its members. What it demonstrated to me is that we are all capable when the chips are down, of doing far more than we think we can. Sgt. Giusto unlocked the hidden reservoirs of capability in all of us.”

Bob Lutz has worked for some of the giants of the industry. GETTY IMAGES

From Harold A. “Red” Poling, ultimate bean counter, and not a nice guy:

“Red taught me that the tough uncompromising, unfeeling, almost nasty approach to initial cost and investment estimates could produce meaningful saving

... The Poling approach served me well during my later tenure at Chrysler and my last tour at GM, although I was always at pains to leaven it just a bit with humour, engineering and marketing judgment.” Lutz also noted to never forget that you can still learn stuff from bosses you can't stand.

From Ralph Mason, a cheerful but serious alcoholic, and product of a bygone era, when there was a lot of hard drinking in the auto industry:

“Ralph nevertheless focused on what was important and advanced the cause of GM and its shareholders.” Lutz also said Mason often went home early to get plastered, but had a good team behind him, trusted them and didn't interfere.

From Rick Wagoner, the capable GM president that couldn't turn GM around:

“A magnificent human being, Rick was simply too nice, too introspective and too thoughtful in many of his actions to see the company through the turbulence of 2008-09... Tolerant of mediocrity, ... it was painful to see Rick protect and support many officers who, to my eyes, personified the large corporate culture of ‘look good, sound good, prepare well for meetings, and never disagree with the boss.’” But Lutz considers Wagoner the perfect “peacetime” CEO, and says Wagoner's moves to buy Daewoo and go aggressively into China are cornerstones of GM's current success.

TAKING CARE OF EVERY DETAIL

HERITAGE CARSTAR

Forget for a moment the high-tech wizardry, the skilled technicians and the sophisticated machinery. Heritage Carstar is primarily in the business of relieving headaches, according to company owner Jack MacKinnon.

“Our No. 1 goal is to make everything hassle-free for our customers,” he says. “We work hard to accomplish that.”

Everyone knows that having a car damaged in an accident is anything but hassle-free. But things get a lot easier as soon as Heritage Carstar gets involved, MacKinnon says. Carstar works directly with your insurance company to provide a seamless service that gets you and your car back on the road quickly, and as good as new.

“We take care of every detail, from the initial appraisal to the completion of the job,” MacKinnon says. “When it's all finished we hand the keys back to the customer. It's as simple as that.”

CONTRIBUTED

If major repairs aren't in your immediate future, perhaps your car deserves a little spa treatment. Heritage Carstar offers a unique “Day at the Spa” service that includes car detailing, hand washing and waxing. The company also has a complete glass replacement service.

In fact, Heritage Carstar has been “doing it all” since 2000. The company has garnered a solid reputation for quality body repairs and paint processes, but Heritage is much more than that, MacKinnon says.

“We do all makes and models. Everything from brakes to exhaust systems, air conditioning, tune-ups, suspensions and alignments. And everything is done in-house. We have our own glass installers, our own paint experts, mechanics, air conditioning technicians — everything we need to get your car back into top condition.”

In 2004, Heritage relocated to its present facility at 50 John Savage Ave. in Burnside. Heritage has always worked hard to be a part of the Burnside community. MacKinnon says the company is serious about environmental stewardship and uses DuPont Waterborne eco-friendly paints that are cleaner and safer than traditional auto paints.

“We pride ourselves in the fact that we recycle everything — metal, bumpers, batteries, oil, filters, empty aerosol cans, rags, cardboard, antifreeze,” he says.

Heritage Carstar — for all your collision repair and glass replacement needs.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Create something wonderful today. This can be one of the most productive times of the year for you, so get serious and get busy working on something that makes your world, and the world at large, a better place.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Whatever problems you may have with a relationship, you won't work it out by trying to force the other person to conform to your way of thinking. Try seeing things from their point of view.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

The Sun's link to Jupiter in your sign today will help you to express yourself freely. It will also help you to get over some kind of falling out you had with a loved one.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Focus on the realities of your everyday situation and avoid any and all forms of wishful thinking. Above all, don't let others' negativity blind you. Life is a garden of delights but too few people see it that way.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You will come out on top today, especially if you focus on things you are good at, things you really enjoy. You will enjoy them more if some people say you should not be doing them.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Moderation is a must today, especially if you are one of those Virgos who tends to get carried away when they find something they really enjoy.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

The Sun close to Jupiter in one of the best areas of your chart means you will have a thoroughly good day. Do a bit of travelling, even if it's only to the corner store and back.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Your taste for the good things in life could lead to you spend too much today but in the greater scheme of things, it's no big deal. Retail therapy could in fact be just what you need to cheer you up.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Jupiter, your ruler, links with the Sun in the partnership area of your chart today, making it easier for you to compromise with people you don't always see eye-to-eye with. Don't compromise too much though.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Don't limit the goods deeds you do to people you know. Help those you encounter in daily life too, even if they are total strangers. Your generosity will have a knock-on affect that touches so many lives.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Life is good and getting better by the hour, the day, the minute. Creatively and romantically you are in such a positive mood that you attract people and situations that bring thrills aplenty. Lucky you.

Pisces

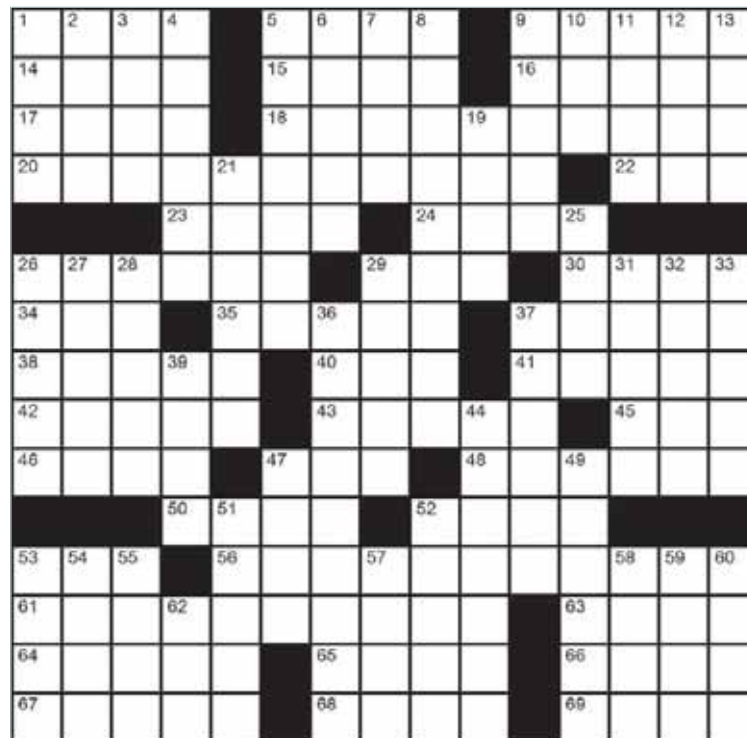

Feb. 20 - March 20

At home and work, people will want to do things for you today, and if you are smart you will let them. You'll feel good about it, they'll feel good about it. SALLY BROMPTON
